Italy's most distinguished wines are the three B's: Barbaresco, Barolo, and Brunello.

The D.O.C.G. Barbaresco district is located in the wine rich area of the Piedmont in Northwest Italy. The tiny Barbaresco district, separated from the Barolo area by the town of Alba, includes the four villages of Barbaresco, Neive, Treiso and San Rocco and 700 hectares (1700 acres) of Nebbiolo grapes.

Produttori del Barbaresco, a cooperative of 56 growers formed in 1958, controls more than 100 hectares (250 acres) of premium Nebbiolo vineyards. The Produttori is considered one of the greatest producers in a great wine-producing area; in the words of Robert Parker, it... "continues to set some of the highest standards of wine making for any cooperative in the world". In all vintages it produces a Barbaresco normale which blends together grapes from all of the properties, but in great vintages it also produces 9 single vineyard riserva wines.

2007 was one of these great vintages, so riserva wines were produced. In this tasting we will be trying 6 of these riservas: wines from Asili, Montefico, Montestefano, Ovello, Pora, and Rio Sordo. All of these wines received ratings in the 90 to 95-point range from the wine press. To enhance the tasting, food will be served, including Bagna Cauda - a warm garlic, olive oil and anchovy sauce served with mixed vegetables and bread, Tajarin Al Funghi - Porcini mushroom pasta served with a porcini mushroom sauce, and Fricco di Agnello alla Crenaia - Lamb shoulder braised with tomatoes.
