When people think of Australian wines, they most often think of South Australia, and the Barossa, Claire and McLaren Vale valleys. However, among other wine regions such as the Yarra Valley and Margaret River, Tasmania is getting an increasing recognition for its excellent wines. It's cold, rainy weather and highly organic soils make it extremely suitable for growing pinot noir, riesling, and sauvignon blanc. Amongst Australians, Tasmania is recognized as having the best sparkling wines, and is becoming increasingly well known for it's pinots. Unfortunately, due to the small size of most of the wineries, most Tasmanian wines rarely make it off the island, let alone out of Australia. You will have a chance to taste some of Tasmania's best in four flights. Each flight will feature wines from different growing regions to get a sense of the variety and terroir.

Flight #1 – Sparkling wines

Kreglinger blanc de blancs Vintage 2000
Arras traditional sparkling wine Vintage 2002 (won best Australian sparkling wine multiple times)
Jansz Vintage Rose 2005 (regarded by many as the best Tasmanian rose)

Flight #2 – Rieslings (all 2007 vintage)

Freycinet Vinyard (Freycinet Peninsula)
Goaty Hill (Tamar Valley)
Lalla Gully (Pipers River Valley)

Flight #3 – Pinots

Morilla Muse 2007 Pinot
Bay of Fires 2008 Pinot
Laurel Bank 2005 Pinot

Flight #4 – Reserve Pinots

Frogmore Creek 2006 Pinot
Frogmore Creek 2005 Reserve Pinot
